SOLID CHERRY WOOD FINISHES

SC - Shenandoah

LC - Lexington

Like all fruit trees, cherry belongs to the rose family and was used as early as 400 B.C. by the Greeks and Romans for furniture making. Cherry helped define American traditional design because Colonial cabinetmakers recognized its superior woodworking qualities. Today, cherry helps define Shaker, Mission and Country styling. The wood from the cherry tree can be described in a single word: beautiful.

Quartersawn Oak is one of the hallmarks of the Arts & Crafts and Prairie styles. At the sawmill, the log is first split into four quarters (hence the name 'quarter-sawn'), then cut on the diagonal from the center of the tree out toward the edges. Gustav Stickley chose it because it is stronger, less prone to checking, warping & splitting and it has a more refined grain pattern. This brings us to one of the main reasons quartersawn is sought after- its grain pattern.

SOLID OAK WOOD FINISHES

The oaks-red and white-are the most abundant U.S. hardwood species. It would be difficult to name a wood with a longer and more illustrious history in furnishings and interior design. Oak was a favorite of early English craftsmen and a prized material for American Colonists.

The American species of maple are divided into two groups: Hard maple, which includes sugar and black maple and soft maple, which includes red and silver maple. Until the turn of the century, the heels of women's shoes were made from maple, as were airplane propellers in the 1920s. Maple has been a favorite of American furniture makers since early Colonial days. Hard maple is the standard wood for cutting boards because it imparts no taste to food and holds up well.

Cherry is most often chosen for its elegant grain patterns and sophisticated look, but Rustic Cherry reveals another dimension to this surprisingly versatile wood. With a higher tolerance for grain variation, knots and mineral marks, these imperfections that give our Rustic Cherry warmth and character.

Walnut lumber is used for fine furniture, architectural woodwork, musical instruments, decorative panels and interior trim. Its stability and shock resistance make it the wood of choice for gun stocks.
